The House of God is our privileged location to meet the Lord. May we take collective ownership to assure that it is at all times maintained in a condition of respect and welcome. Kindly replace booklets in the pew book holders and gather any loose papers.

Thank you for your assistance.

“Where Are You?”

In the story of creation we read that after all the preparation of the environment was complete, God created man and woman. Paradise was their habitat, with the expectation that they freely act in accord with God's wishes. We know they violated that trust and were held accountable. To call them to task, God sought out Adam and Eve, calling, “Where are you?”

Today, that same question can be applied to people everywhere who also are held accountable.

- To all the persons gifted with faith who prefer the leisure of a lazy Sunday and don't worship their loving God, where are you?
- To all the persons of intelligence, prudence and initiative who should step forward to solve many of the social problems of our day, where are you?
- To all those blessed with diplomacy and grace, the peacemakers in every family, community and country, who ought to assure the resolution of all conflicts, where are you?
- To religious leaders who have taken a vow to give witness to moral and ethical behavior and fortify others of similar convictions, where are you?
- To the parents of children who desperately need their love, example and shared experiences, where are you?
- To the children who at all ages need to provide love, affirmation and care for their parents, where are you?
- To those blessed with the ability to make sacrifices to the benefit of others, exemplifying that serving is much better than being served, where are you?
- To those capable of mercy, who realize the human imperfection of others and are always ready to forgive, where are you?
- To the volunteers for countless causes that cry out for participation, where are you?
- To you at this particular moment in your spiritual journey, knowing that the Lord will someday expect an account, where are you?

We each can add our own particular calling to the list. God has created us, the family of Adam and Eve, for a brief earthly existence and to experience our paradise. The question remains how will we each share the best version of ourselves with our fellow man. Where are you?

Blessings,
Father Vincent T. Kelly
